

Pacific Building creates strong foundation for growth

A construction firm that works with some of the world's leading companies is celebrating its tenth year in business this summer.

Privately run Pacific Building was formed in 2005 by Chartered Builder Brian Gallacher and since then has delivered high-quality projects throughout the UK and Ireland for a host of clients including McDonald's, KFC, Bupa, Gleneagles Hotel, JD Wetherspoon and Glasgow Airport.

Based in Earl Haig Road since 2011, Pacific Building work within a variety of sectors such as commercial, leisure, hotels, restaurants and retail, which has allowed them to grow year on year even during the economic downturn.

To celebrate this landmark anniversary, Pacific are having a party for its team and clients, creating corporate films sharing its success story and donating £500 to ten different local charities.

Brian Gallacher, MD of Pacific Building said: "We have a fantastic team at Pacific and together our skills and experience have resulted in widespread plaudits for our high quality work and fast turnaround on projects. We are committed to innovation, dedication, dependability and a get-it-right-first-time approach, which has allowed us to build lasting relationships that has in turn aided our growth.

"We have continued to grow year on year which is even more impressive when you take into account the downturn and we're very proud to have reached our tenth year in such a strong position. We wanted to share our celebrations with others and we're delighted to be able to help ten local charities with donations of £500."

With a strong order book of repeat and new business, the future is bright for Pacific Building and the company is looking to continue its growth from its base on the Park.

Brian added: "Our plan is to keep on expanding and ensuring that we not only retain existing clients but take on new ones. Our turnover doubled in three years and our aim is to do the same again while bringing in new members of our team.

"The great thing about being in Hillington is its connectivity and convenience. We work across the whole of the northern section of the UK, and Hillington is located perfectly for our needs. That, coupled with the variety of services, including retail and transport links, makes it a great place for our staff to be based."

New branding signals new phase for EEG

Throughout the first quarter of 2015 EEG, one of the UK's largest providers of drainage and utility solutions, with its headquarters in Hillington, has implemented a strategic plan to refresh its fleet image.

EEG have introduced a range of brand new Mercedes Sprinter and Citan vehicles, which have replaced and added to its small and medium sized fleet.

EEG Fleet Manager Ian Summers said: "This new strategy will provide a cost effective, efficient, and more environmentally friendly solution for our company. This is the start of a much longer-term fleet replacement strategy, which will see us phase in a range of newer vehicles across our group over the course of this year. Overall this is a significant investment for us, but we believe it will lead us forward successfully over the next few years."

There has been a dramatic shift with regards to the branding of EEGs' new fleet vehicles, which has seen the switch from a conventional and more commonly known white base colour vehicle to a much more dramatic black base colour vehicle.

EEG Group Managing Director Steve Joyce added: "We believe that this vibrant new look reflects our vision going forward as a company, and we aim to build upon our on-going success. The feedback that we have received so far on this new brand approach has been very positive and we will continue to strengthen both our brand and fleet over the course of this year."
